

TRAVELSCENE CORPORATE MEMBERS TO THRIVE IN 2010

May 12 2010: A record number of Travelscene Corporate Members are Hong Kong bound for the network's May 14-15 Annual Symposium.

Travelscene Corporate General Manager, David Padman, said the "Thrive in the New Landscape" conference, "was an invaluable opportunity for Members and management to assess, review and refine the strategic approach to ensure ongoing success.

"The timing for the event could not be better given the strong momentum we are seeing in the Corporate Travel sector at present," Mr Padman said.

"Our Members know that success flows from change and not from standing still and, as always, our Corporate Symposium will provide a chance for us, individually and collectively, to determine how we will thrive in the new landscape."

In addition to well-known business journalist, Michael Pascoe, Members will benefit from the insight of key note speakers, Todd Sampson, co-creator of the Earth Hour initiative and CEO of Leo Burnett, and Terry Hawkins, a leading presenter in human performance. Travelscene CEO Mike Thompson, Stella Travel Services CEO Peter Lacaze as well as the Travelscene Corporate team and industry experts will also address the conference.

A series of workshops covering key corporate issues, as well as strategic access to key corporate suppliers will complete the 2010 Corporate Symposium programme.
